

7 COPY + PASTE PROMPTS

To Your Dream Website

01

Name your offer in one line.

If you cannot say it in one line, your website cannot say it either.

 COPY-PASTE PROMPT

Act as a positioning coach. Here is what my business does, in my own words: [paste 2-3 sentences]. Write 5 versions of my offer as a single sentence. Each one must name who it is for and the outcome they get. Under 20 words each. Plain language. No hype words.

02

Meet your ideal visitor.

You are not writing for everyone. You are writing for one person.

 COPY-PASTE PROMPT

Act as a customer researcher. My offer is: [paste your one-liner]. Describe my ideal website visitor: what they are struggling with, what they have already tried, what would make them trust a new business, and the exact words they would type into Google. Keep it under 200 words.

03

Map your pages.

Most small business websites need five pages, not fifteen.

 COPY-PASTE PROMPT

Act as a website strategist. My offer is: [paste your one-liner]. My ideal visitor: [paste the visitor profile]. List the pages my website needs. For each page, write one sentence on what it must do for the visitor. Maximum 5 pages.

04

Outline your homepage.

Your homepage has one job: make the right visitor keep reading.

 COPY-PASTE PROMPT

Act as a conversion copywriter. My offer: [paste your one-liner]. My visitor: [paste the profile]. Outline my homepage section by section. For each section give me a headline, a subheadline, and 2 to 3 bullet points. Plain language. Never use words like revolutionary, cutting-edge, or unleash.

05

Draft your services.

People buy outcomes, not service names.

 COPY-PASTE PROMPT

Act as a copywriter. My offer is: [paste your one-liner]. My services are: [list them]. For each service write three things: who it is for, what the client walks away with, and one sentence on why I am the right person to deliver it. Match the tone of my one-liner. Under 60 words per service.

06

Tell your story.

People hire people. Your about section is a trust shortcut.

 COPY-PASTE PROMPT

Act as a story editor. Here is my background in my own words: [2-3 sentences about you]. Turn it into an about section under 120 words that connects my story to why I do this work. First person. Warm. No resume language.

07

Make your launch checklist.

A planned site still deserves a calm launch.

 COPY-PASTE PROMPT

Act as a launch manager. Here is my website plan: [paste your page map and homepage outline]. Give me a launch checklist in order: content I still need to finish, technical setup including domain and hosting, and what to test before I share the link. Explain how to connect a custom domain on Vercel in plain steps.
